

In the Specification:

The paragraph beginning on page 1, line 24 is amended as follows:

The system is server-centered, so one of the advantages of the solution is that during the transaction process, the user's identification data (e.g. Personal Identification Number (PIN)) are protected with security levels that can be made higher at will, with no need for additional functionalities on the end-user's GSM terminal.